

Intelligence / by Susan Hasler
FIC HASLER

CIA agent Madeline James heads a crew of counterterrorist analysts currently attempting to decode a massive terrorist plot that could potentially be bigger than 9/11. As they race against the clock, James and her team must also battle against a counterproductive bureaucratic structure intent on promoting its own political agenda by inhibiting any evidence which might be uncovered, and hence any legitimacy the entire operation could have.

House Justice: A Joe DeMarco Thriller / by Michael Lawson
FIC LAWSON

When an American defense contractor commits treason by attempting to sell missile technology to Iran, the CIA is informed via the intelligence work of one very brave foreign agent who's killed for his work after a security breach. Speaker of the House John Mahoney tabs political fix-it guru Joe DeMarco to head the investigation and find out who might have leaked the information.

Last Snow / by Eric Van Lustbader
FIC LUSTBADER

Jack McClure is a special advisor to the new US President Ed Carson when an American senator is found dead following a trip to the Ukraine. Called upon to investigate, McClure heads off to Russia to try and dig up just what happened confronting more than his fair share of confusing international protocol, corrupt politicians and misleading information along the way.

Supreme Justice: A Novel of Suspense / by Philip Margolin
FIC MARGOLIN

A woman on death row appeals her case to the Supreme Court causing an upheaval in the entire CIA/Intelligence Community. PI Dana Cutler and her partner Brad Miller are hired to investigate the turmoil in Washington soon finding that an ongoing CIA cover-up may include an assassination plot targeting a Supreme Court justice.

Dark Horse: A Political Thriller / by Ralph Reed
FIC REED

Presidential candidate and current California Governor Bob Long has just lost the Democratic National Convention to the scandalous Senator Salmon Stanley who is suspected to have played dirty to get the necessary votes. But the race takes on a new twist when Long and his advisors decide to run as an independent candidate. Can Long actually win, or will he be seen as just another non-partisan longshot?

The Confirmation / by Ralph Reed
FIC REED

There are many, many problems to confront during newly-elected U.S. President Bob Long's tumultuous first few months in office. But he might catch a break when a chance to appoint a conservative judge to the Supreme Court falls into his lap, an act which would appease the masses of evangelicals and right wing partisans who voted him into office. Of course things are never that easy as Long's appointee Marco Diaz succumbs to a series of vicious character allegations by the democratic caucus.

Mounting Fears / by Stuart Woods
FIC WOODS

President William Jefferson Lee has his hands full after his vice president dies during surgery. It's an election year and Lee's newly appointed VP has just come under fire for some personal indiscrepancies. Additionally, there's a missing nuclear warhead somewhere in the Middle East and extreme political unrest in Pakistan. Lee and his team of advisors including Holly Barker and Lance Cabot are really going to need some political fix-it magic at this juncture.

Stranglehold / by Edward Gorman
MYS GORMAN

Political consultant Dev Conrad agrees to help Congresswoman Susan Cooper get reelected only to find that Cooper herself is concealing some pretty shady secrets. Unsure of exactly what it is that Cooper is hiding, Conrad plays private detective tracking Cooper's every move soon discovering a shocking truth which has already cost the life of one staffer and could mean the untimely deaths of more.

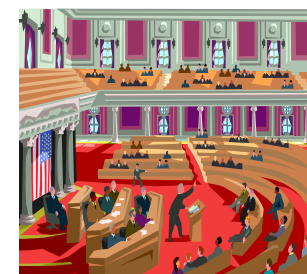

MOORE LIBRARY

1701 9TH AVENUE NORTH
TEXAS CITY, TX 77590

PH: 409-643-5977

WWW.TEXASCITY-LIBRARY.ORG

NEWER POLITICAL FICTION

FICTION

First Family / by David Baldacci
FIC BALDACCI

A birthday party held at Camp David for the President's 12-year-old daughter goes horribly wrong when the girl is abducted in an apparent hostage situation. The distraught first lady enlists the aid of ex-Secret Service agents now private investigators Sean King and Michelle Maxwell to help track down the kidnappers and bring the young girl back safely.

The Overton Window / by Glenn Beck
FIC BECK

Wealthy bachelor Noah Gardner is more interested in living the high life than anything having to do with politics. But when his new girlfriend Molly Ross introduces him to a conspiracy theory called the Overton Window, laying the premise that American public perception could be manipulated en masse, Noah begins to pay a little more attention to the country's well-being and swiftly takes action when the Overton Window plan is initiated.

Capitol Betrayal: A Novel / by William Bernhardt
FIC BERNHARDT

Disappointed Washington lawyer Ben Kincaid has just lost his bid for a Senate seat and is at the white house working on legal issues for the new President Roland Kyler when the nation comes under missile attack. Kincaid and the rest of the White House Staff retreat to the underground bunker where amidst all the chaos, Kincaid must help mediate an increasingly tense atmosphere which includes an attempt by the vice-president to seize power.

America America: A Novel / by Ethan Canin
FIC CANIN

In the early 1970's, Corey Sifter is the son of hardworking middle-class parents in upstate New York when he lands a job as a groundskeeper for the wealthy Metarey family. With the Metarey's lifelong patronage, Corey attends a swanky private boarding school, then college and with time becomes a campaign advisor to a New York state senator currently running for president.

Triangle of Deception / by Haggai Carmon
FIC CARMON

Intelligence officer Dan Gordon is currently engaged in an undercover investigation into a Lebanese terror cell operating in South America. But when things get out of hand and the operation is exposed, Gordon is apprehended and held hostage in another part of the world. Now Gordon suspects that he's involved in a cover-up orchestrated by his own government which is now using him as a political pawn.

The Rules of the Game / by Leonard Downie
FIC DOWNIE

Sarah Page is a Washington Post reporter covering the national politics and the current presidential race. When Page's investigation of the new Democratic nominee exposes corruption at the highest levels, she finds that some things are more important than the truth (i.e., national security) when it comes to big time politics.

Pursuit of Honor / by Vince Flynn
FIC FLYNN

Washington, D.C. is in physical and political disarray after a terrorist attack on the National Counterterrorism Center (NCC) has killed 185 Americans. In the wake of things, White House officials as well as members of Congress are incensed about the extreme counter-terrorist initiatives taken which have seemingly endangered many lives. But NCC operative Mitch Rapp knows his business just like he knows the immediate measures he and other members of his agency must take in order to ensure National Security.

Ultimatum / by Matthew Glass
FIC GLASS

In the near future, Joe Benton is president of the United States when he learns that the global warming damage and rising seas will mean that over thirty million coastal US residents will need to be relocated. Doing his best to negotiate internationally for help in the process, Benton comes up against his toughest political battle as the US butts heads with China in a high-stakes diplomatic affair.

The Abduction / by James Grippando
FIC GRIPPANDO

As current U.S. Attorney General and Presidential hopeful, Allison Leahy is prepared to confront a few skeletons in her closet. But nothing prepares her for the personal re-emergence of her former lover Mitch O'Brien. Nothing except for the traumatic abduction of the granddaughter of Leahy's opposition candidate Lincoln Howe, a crime Leahy is eerily familiar with having had her own child kidnapped in similar fashion eight years earlier.

The Cabal / by David Hagberg
FIC HAGBERG

A CIA operative and Washington Post reporter uncover a secret organization known as the Friday Club comprised of high-ranking officials in powerful sectors of the government. Soon afterwards, when both the CIA agent and the newspaperman are murdered in cold blood, Spy Kirk McGarvey attempts to trace down the responsible party.

The Capitol Game / by Brian Haig
FIC HAIG

A small independent company makes a miraculous scientific discovery: a metallic polymer which can reinforce any substance with the equivalent of 30 inches of steel. One of the privileged few to catch wind of the invention, Wall Street Banker Jack Wiley intends to enlist one of the country's most powerful corporations, the Capitol Group, to takeover the small company. But he runs into problems when various Washington officials and members of the Pentagon begin investigating the deal.

Marine One / by James Huston
FIC HUSTON

When the White House official helicopter, Marine One, crashes during flight killing everyone including the President, an investigation is immediately undertaken. World-Copter, the parent contractor of Marine One, hires US attorney Mike Nolan to help defend the company against legal allegations and look deeper into the tragedy.